The president's platform

Welcoming the new board

COLUMN BY LARRY HAGEMEISTER

The Electrical Rebuilder's Association (ERA) Trade Show has passed for another year. I would like to thank everyone who attended. The rebuilders that took the time to attend this show are truly dedicated to this industry, their businesses and their education.

Besides the training offered, there's a camaraderie between fellow rebuilders that seems to go on at these shows as they mingle and visit about rebuilding.

The discussions during the roundtable meeting at the show are very educational. I know I learn things by talking to other rebuilders that I would never have had the opportunity to learn had I not attended the show.

Rebuilders that do not attend the shows are missing a whole lot more than what is on the show schedule.

As many of you know, this was an election year for ERA officers. These volunteers have been elected and are now in office. I was elected to be your new president.

Your other board members include:

Joe Bradish, Second Vice President

Daren Roggentien, Secretary

Ronnie Charnes, Southeast Vice President

Henry Henke, North Central Vice President

Kenny Turner, South Central Vice President

Chris Galbreath, Northwest Vice President (2nd/half)

Harald Kober, Canadian/West Vice President

Jim Thomas, Past President

There are some things I have in mind that I will be getting started on. I am always interested in your ideas. Contact me any time.

Don't forget about the Web site, there is always good information on there. Post your questions and comments so we can work together and learn. Be sure to check out the new members-only feature on the Web site: the JIMCO wiring diagrams.

Again thank you to all the members that get involved in the organization—they are the ones that make it work.
